The global retail sector faces major challenges of adjusting to the changed economic landscape. Consumer spending had been the sector's most dynamic growth facilitator for a considerable period, but a significant drop in spending levels has posed significant challenges for this sector. Lean inventory management, liquidity and preservation of capital thinking are to be the new focus for the retail sector.

Our expertise covers the whole value chain of retail trade - from product logistics to studying consumer preferences and buying habits. We also offer our clients services on broader issues pertaining to understanding the market environment, strategy formulation, attracting investment and performance improvement.

Among our clients are successful retail chains, importing companies and emerging shopping centers. We have supported clients in a number of retail industry areas, including construction materials, home improvement and DIY, FMCG, food and beverage, fashion, clothing, and more.
